Short Description

Externally funded research grants form a critical component of the professional career growth of a researcher and faculty member. The short term course is designed to bring together salient aspects of funded research through external grants including an overview of funding schemes, proposal writing, project grant management, and project deliverables. The modules include case studies and hands-on training based on real situations apart from a session on international grants for faculty members, master/doctoral scholars and international collaborators. In addition to the well known funding agencies, the course also discusses short term funding through non-government international agencies. The six-day course is designed to provide an exhaustive overview of the life cycle of an externally funded project and will also address the queries from the perspective of faculty members and scientists.
